ABSTRACT:

In politics the leftist says, 'take left turn for the right direction'. And the rightist says, 'take right turn for the right direction'. Both claim that they are right. Both claim that they are better than best. This simply confuses common people clearly.

INTRODUCTION

Creative writing is based more on manifestation rather than on expression. It does not inform, rather it reveals. So it bears no reference. The best creative writing is critical, and the best critical writing is creative. This article is an outcome of thinking about creative writing meant for a general readership. As such, I have adopted a free style methodology so that everyone can enjoy the pleasure of reading. As you might know, Francis Bacon (1561-1626), the immortal essayist, wrote many essays namely 'Of Love', 'Of Friendship', 'Of Ambition', 'Of Studies', and so on. The multiple-minded genius correctly pointed out that all the words of the dictionary can be used as themes for essays. But little has been done since his death to continue or finish his monumental task. Bacon's unique individual style of presentation ignited my imagination and encouraged me to write creative essays as a method of relieving a wide range of emotions through catharsis.

ARTICLE

Confusion means not clear or difficult to understand. It is to mix up or jumble together. It is to mix up mentally. It causes doubt. So, one fails to distinguish between two identical things. As such it paves the way to commit mistake at ease and very smoothly. It is a state of uncertainty about what is happening, intended, required, etc. i.e. an instance of this. It is to make somebody unable to think clearly. It simply bewilders. It is the mistaking of one person or thing for another. It is to make something less clear. It is a state of being not clear in one's mind because of lack of understanding, embarrassment, etc. This poor or incomplete or half knowledge confuses a person with certainty and thereby throws a person into uncertainty. It is to put something into disorder i.e. to upset something. It is a lack of control or order. Thus it causes and creates panic during urgency or in crisis.

Confusion is a relative concept. With known environment man behaves smartly. An expert can tackle any awkward situation. But that expert becomes novice if he does not update his knowledge regularly. Then confusion dogs him like shadow.

Confusion suggests an indiscriminate mixing or putting together of things so that it is difficult to distinguish the individual elements or parts. Poor or incomplete knowledge confuses. Practice makes a man perfect. Non practice deletes the information from human brain as is usually happens in case of computer memory.

If a person revisits a place after a long gap, then the abrupt change of the concerned place confuses him. He cannot match with his memory. Present confuses the past. He has to satisfy himself by nostalgia.

A fool easily be confused seldom an intelligent person. Human life is a collection of confusing events. Human being experiences so many unsolved problems like many undiscovered mysteries. A cheater cheats through confusion befooling others. He enchases confusion by tricks through his innovative mechanism. But he is cheated by the Almighty God, as is preached by a theologian.

Man is confused. He is bound to be confused. Similarly, man confuses others to serve his purpose by any means fair or foul. Fair is for amusing purpose. Foul is to cheat others for personal gain. Thus man is both the cause and because of confusion. In this regard he has nothing to do except confusing others or being confused by others as reciprocation.

Thus human being experiences various types of confusions from cradle to coffin in its various forms and features having different degrees and dimensions as well.

Disorder and disarray imply a disturbance of the proper order or arrangement of parts.

Chaos implies total and apparently irremediable lack of organization.

Jumble suggests a confused mixture of dissimilar things.

Muddle implies a snarled confusion resulting from mismanagement or incompetence.

The confusions of adolescence are dangerous. An inexperienced novice gazes in confusion at the strange sight. Someone laughs for someone. Someone laughs at someone. Only a judicious soul can distinguish it seldom an emotional heart.

Confusion enchants the tender minds. It diverts them. If the tender soul is genius then he becomes diverted genius. Such a diverted genius becomes a misguided missile. He becomes either dangerously brilliant or brilliantly dangerous or both simultaneously.

Thus immense is the force of confusion upon youth. As such, no force or none can hardly resist them from utter, untimely or ultimate ruin.

Where there is compulsion there lies no confusion. Ambiguity confuses. Share may be fifty-fifty or in any proportion. Chance can never be fifty-fifty. But this fifty-fifty concept is widely used around the world. If a student passes in the examination, then chance is sent percent. In case of failure the chance is zero.

There may be confusion about what the correct procedure should be. But result is confirmed. If the procedure is correct outcome is correct. Correct is definite and singular in number. Wrong avenues escort wrong destinations. Wrongs are many and plural in number.

If any policy suffers from confusions, it cannot be implemented due to doubts. Two or more persons having same name confuses. Then adjective is used to identify them properly namely tall Jack or mad Jack. Similarly two persons are confused if they look alike. Unexpected arrival of the boss confuses all plans of the employees. Similarly changes of plan render one totally confused. Civil war throws the people in a state of confusion. So many questions confuse an interviewee or a criminal in the police station.

A shrewd person confuses the issue by introducing irrelevant topics. As man grows older memory becomes weak. So old age easily gets confused. Any instruction must be crystal clear otherwise confusion misinterprets.

Confusion and contradiction are synonymous. The former is spontaneous and the latter one is manmade. So in any agreement or treaty confusing or contradictory issues should be avoided for the sake of permanent settlement. But a shrewd politician introduces these points intentionally and later on interprets those ambiguous doctrines as per his sweet will. In any theory excessive facts and figures confuse the readers. Out of sight confirms out of mind. But confusions arise from lack of communication. It, therefore, seems forgetting is better than confusion.

With confusion a student cannot proceed further. He must remove his confusion in each and every step. With vague idea his knowledge becomes incomplete. With such partial knowledge he cannot prosper. He becomes half genius. Such a half genius explains any matter as per his sweet will. He starts but leaves in the halfway. Thus such a half genius is dangerous more than a non genius.

CONCLUSION

In politics the leftist says, 'take left turn for the right direction'. And the rightist says, 'take right turn for the right direction'. Both claim that they are right. Both claim that they are better than best. This simply confuses common people clearly.
