INTRODUCTION

Creative writing is based more on manifestation rather than on expression. It does not inform, rather it reveals. So it bears no reference. The best creative writing is critical, and the best critical writing is creative. This article is an outcome of thinking about creative writing meant for a general readership. As such, I have adopted a free style methodology so that everyone can enjoy the pleasure of reading. As you might know, Francis Bacon (1561-1626), the immortal essayist, wrote many essays namely 'Of Love', 'Of Friendship', 'Of Ambition', 'Of Studies', and so on. The multiple-minded genius correctly pointed out that all the words of the dictionary can be used as themes for essays. But little has been done since his death to continue or finish his monumental task. Bacon's unique individual style of presentation ignited my imagination and encouraged me to write creative essays as a method of relieving a wide range of emotions through catharsis.

ARTICLE

Separate means to divide, disconnect, set apart, or become detached, referring to items no longer together or distinct entities. It is used to describe dividing objects/groups (e.g., "separate the papers"), ending relationships (e.g., "they separated"), or distinguishing things.

Separation takes place by and for many reasons as follows.

Dividing items: "Please separate the laundry into lights and darks".

Physical distance: "The rooms are separated by a hallway".

Distinguishing concepts: "It's hard to separate fact from fiction".

Relationship status: "The couple decided to separate after ten years".

Distinct items: "They live in separate houses".

Separate is normal event. In reality man faces it and practices it many times. Sometimes he is liable, sometimes he is not. Thus man is both the cause and because of separation. However, he cannot be blamed always for this wrong.

It is easy to be separate. It is difficult to remain united. Joint family cannot remain together mainly due to unequal financial earning thereby capacity of each member. In such situation if the rich member considers other poor members only then the family stays together otherwise separation is a must.

Generally, the brothers remain united till they are bachelor. After marriage they become separate being influenced by curtain lecture. In most of the cases the reason is that the wives hail from different family background. As such they differ naturally.

Someone likes to remain isolated. He is self-centered. He seldom cares the welfare of others. He remains anxious till he serves his purpose. Once his object is fulfilled he returns his home and closes the door. He remains self-captive till his inventory becomes empty. Such a person is isolated by the members of the society.

Separation from motherland is called nostalgia. Man mourns lifelong being separated from his homeland. Further man repents for wrong deeds towards his near and dear one. He mourns. He realizes that he did wrong being hot-tempered. He admits that he lost his control. He wants to beg pardon to those whom he misbehaved without any valid reason. He becomes upset when he discovers that they are no more and died already. He confesses his guilt to self. He isolates himself for repentance. He surrenders to Almighty God and gets relief through salvation.

Separate from education causes hindrance towards enlightenment of the soul. It confirms destruction. Separate from culture means social degradation that paves the way to be prodigal.

When two persons are separated they forget each other. The probable cause is out of sight out of mind. This idea may not be correct always. In case of genuine love the partners forget never. If two lovers are separated then they become emotionally charged to meet each other. A sly lover separates himself intentionally to enjoy violent attraction. It is the torture of one partner towards the soft soul.

Talent cannot be suppressed. Talented person cannot be dominated. He must draw attention in the crowd even. A fool cannot be king. If he occupies the throne by any means then very soon he will be dethroned. Talent is a separate thing. It does not depend on caste or culture. It is automatic. It is like a spring that comes out of the hill spontaneously. Good environment helps to flourish it. Good culture sharpens it.

United we stand divided we fall is a great saying. This doctrine has immense practical importance. It is a caution to the selfish and self-centered person. Such a person never helps others. Hardly does he think who will help him in danger and distress. In real life he gets no help in need.

Someone likes separation. Someone likes union. Both are diagonally opposite with each other regarding their philosophies towards their lives. The former is broad-minded and the latter one is narrow-minded respectively.

Further separation enables someone to study attentively or devote himself for any noble cause. Someone likes separation since he is self centered. Such a selfish person comes out from shell and speaks with someone to serve and satisfy his self interest. Such a person is so selfish that he does not respond to the call of the person from whom he was benefitted. He is so shameless that he again asks for help to the concerned person whom he denied help in need. Thus he opens and closes the door of communication through his innovative mechanism. It is really an art.

During walking all the persons should work with uniform speed. A slow walker becomes separated from the forwarding mass. This is equally true in case of study.

A brilliant student is always ahead for his high grasping capacity. He can finish and actually finishes the whole syllabus before stipulated period of time. All the students are not of equal merit. As such academic calendar and length of syllabus are fixed basing on the merit and capacity of the mediocre student or average merit as a whole.

There are class distinctions in the society. All the sections live separately for their own safety, security and more clearly to save from hatred.

The elite class is noted for broad mind. The lower class is ill-famed for being narrowness. Now if a person of elite class is narrow-minded then he becomes separated thereby degraded from the so-called enlightened society. Similarly, if a poor person either becomes educated or rich or both simultaneously then he is upgraded to the aristocrat society. Now if such a upgraded soul possesses wide heart then he surpasses the so-called upper class through his innovative mechanism for being uncommon rather quite exception as well. He is fortunate. He became zero to hero. He is really a genius.

Someone suffers from superiority complex. Someone suffers from inferiority complex. But complex of any kind is not good at all. Both are bad and cause hindrance towards advancement. The former suffers from having ego. The latter one suffers from having no ego or self-esteem. Both avoid each other. These two classes remain separated by default like a computer. They are like two diagonally opposite species exist in the society. They cannot be engaged in any welfare scheme. If they are engaged inadvertently the whole project suffers from frustration.

An optimist always sees the positive side of life. He always hopes for the sun rise. In contrast a pessimist always discovers the negativity of life. He always suffers from frustration. He sees degradation of all and everywhere. He is afraid of sun set. Seeing the sun set he thinks that the sun will rise never. But to an optimist every sun set guarantees the sun rise in the morning of the very next day. To him the last rays of the setting sun convey the message having inner significance of bright and golden future.

There is basic difference between an extrovert and introvert. Both cannot live together. An extrovert gets relief expressing much. Sometimes he exaggerates more than the fact. He likes to beat his own drum. He is quite dashy-pussy. As such he talks rubbish full of lies.

In contrast an introvert is against of self campaigning. He is not proud at all. Rather he hates pride. He knows pride goes before a fall. He likes to hear. He talks less, hears more and bears most.

There are two kinds of people. The first category likes to torture. The second category likes to be tortured. An extrovert belongs to the first category and the introvert belongs to the second category. An introvert enjoys defeat. He avoids limelight. He is not afraid of being cornered like others. He likes to remain in the corner. He feels comfort there. It is his comfort zone. It is his classical success. The tyrant extrovert does not know it. It is his artistic failure.

In the forest a tiger or lion firstly isolates its target prey then kills it. They cannot kill the prey when it is in a group. Similarly, a lonely girl can easily be eloped by her lover. She does not know her future due to lacking in experience. Similarly an unguarded boy comes in contact with bad company and becomes prodigal. As such parents always look after their children lest they do not become separated from the main stream thereby diverted. In fact unshaded infant is a curse to any person.

Physical separation is less painful than mental separation. If two persons want to be separated then they can be separated either mutually or forcefully. In case of forceful separation nagging disturbs the partner. If a couple do not feel attraction further and if they become compelled to live in a room then it becomes quite embarrassing to both.

Honour killing is a dangerous threat to the lovers. Yet the lovers of patriarchal society do not care of it. They welcome death. They welcome mundane separation to be united again in the heaven after their death.

CONCLUSION

Use and throw is a tool to separate someone and be separated from that one simultaneously. In business weak partner is cheated by the rich partner. In case of love the partners feel attraction till they are not sexually involved. Sexual involvement has two outcomes. Either they marry or be separated permanently. What will happen none knows.
